For hundreds of years, Italy has been the source for some of the globe's greatest art, fashion, and cuisine. The European peninsula and its islands are home to renowned cultural institutions and centuries-old traditions, including wine production. Italy is the largest producer of wine in the world and the ideal place to explore unique geography and beautiful landscapes. Here are three different Italian regions to visit and raise a glass to this summer.

Zenato Family Wines (Valpolicella): Verona is located near Lake Garda in Northern Italy and is one of the country's most popular destinations for tourists. Along the sparkling blue waters of the famous lake is an area called Valpolicella, where native grapes like Corvina, Rondinella, and Oseleta reflect the winemaking traditions of the region. Italian wine estate, Zenato wines, not only utilizes these native grapes, but blends ancient techniques with modern philosophies to create exceptional wines. The estate welcomes guests to stay at four-star accommodation Le Ali Del Frassino while they taste through Zenato's brilliant portfolio of wines and enjoy the beauty of the natural landscape surrounding the vineyards. Wine tastings and tour details for Zenato can be found here.
